Juris Doctor

The Law School recently revised its program objectives for the JD to clarify them, and make them easier to measure.

To measure student progress, the Law School uses the Nevada State Bar Exam and professional papers.

Results from the Bar indicate that students are performing above the state average by 14%, which is significant. The School designed the Academic Success Program to help students improve their learning and achieve better scores on the Bar. Additionally, the Law School is offering small group workshops to students concurrent with commercial Bar preparation programs.
